

You may have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your health care will cost

Under the law, health care providers need to give patients who don't have insurance or who are not using insurance an estimate of the bill for health-related items and services.

If you are eligible for an estimate, it will be provided to if you ask for it or if you schedule an appointment at least three business days in advance. Here's what you should know about your rights under this law:

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency items or services.
- If you are an eligible patient, we will provide you with a Good Faith Estimate in writing at least one business day before your non-emergency health-related service or item. You can also ask us and any other provider you choose, for a Good Faith Estimate before you schedule an item or service.
- This estimate is not a contract and does not require you to get services from The Wright Center.
- If you are billed for more than this Good Faith Estimate, you have the right to dispute the bill.
- If you are billed more than $400 above the amount on the Good Faith Estimate, you may also start a dispute resolution process with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
